RE: GN Docket NO. 13-86

Dear Federal Communications Commission,

This letter is in response to the Public Notice of, GN Docket No. 13-86. Our family is absolutely against the commission making any changes to the current broadcast indecency policy that would allow for loosening of the laws. In fact, we feel that if any changes should be made, that they should be made by way of tougher penalties and fines for indecency cases; as well as a revamping of the policies and procedures that your commission has in place for following through with these cases where indecency laws are being broken.

Further, we feel that if your commission should decide to loosen the laws, then the commission should also force cable, dish, and public television to allow the consumer to choose what programming they would like to have in their homes so as to help those of us that DO NOT FOR ANY REASON what to see looser indecency laws.

It is already more difficult than we would like to control what we allow into our homes and the loosening of these laws will only make that harder if not impossible knowing the standards of broadcasting now.

Too many indecency laws are already allowed to be broken and broadcasting seems to be constantly pushing right up to the limits of what should be acceptable. We are sickened by the Victoria Secret Commercials and the shows and commercials that delve into very adult topics, subjects, and indecent language; only to name a few of the items that are offensive and egregious to us even as adults. Let alone allowing the introduction of these to our children at such young ages.

We are thoroughly upset to hear that more than one million complaints were closed due to them being beyond the statute of limitations. This seems like a very poor handling of your arm of the government.

If you were to loosen the laws any further, we would simply disconnect our TV's from cable, dish, or even antennae so as to not have nudity of any kind or more fowl language to enter into our home.

Please consider carefully the impact to children and adults alike that are trying desperately to hold on to our beliefs and who are trying desperately to have good uplifting programming for our families to watch.

We know that there are many ways that you could solve this problem without loosening of the laws and we ask that you look into these options thoroughly before making any changes to the current standards. Thank you for your time and consideration as you work to find a positive solution to your internal problem.

Sincerely,

Tanya L. Parke, Draper Utah
